REPORT ON CHILDREN'S DAY CELEBRATION

Government Polytechnic, Siwan | 14 November 2024

Introduction

Children's Day is celebrated in India every year on 14 November to mark the birth anniversary of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, the first Prime Minister of India, who was affectionately known as “Chacha Nehru” and believed that children are the future of the nation. On 14 November 2024, Children’s Day was observed at Government Polytechnic, Siwan, to remember his message and highlight the importance of education, care, and the overall development of children.

Celebration and Activities

The occasion provided an opportunity for students and faculty members to reflect on the value of childhood, learning, discipline, creativity, and mutual respect. The spirit of the day encouraged students to participate positively in educational and cultural life and to recognise the role of teachers and educational institutions in shaping responsible citizens. The celebration also reminded everyone that every child deserves equal opportunities, encouragement, and a safe environment in which to learn and grow.

Importance of the Day

Children's Day is more than a celebration; it is a reminder of society's responsibility towards children. Quality education, good health, equality, and emotional support help young people develop their abilities and contribute to the country's progress. The values associated with Chacha Nehru's love for children continue to inspire students to work hard, remain curious, and build a better future.

Conclusion

The observance of Children's Day at Government Polytechnic, Siwan, on 14 November 2024 highlighted the importance of children and education in nation-building. The day encouraged everyone to value learning, nurture talent, and support the growth of the younger generation. It served as a meaningful reminder that the future of the nation depends on the care, education, and opportunities provided to its children.
